found that my local supplier is still happy to supply me with paint and cellulose thinners etc. After various trials and errors the colour we found gave the best match was Subaru Dense Green. The company from whom I sourced the paint is based in Bedford it is:-

Ethanol in fuel.

Some of you may be aware that there has been some discussion in the motoring press relating to the fact that ethanol is now being added to petrol. Some users of elderly vehicles have commented on the build up of sticky residues in the fuel systems which appear to be caused by some of the seals employed in older vehicles being partially dissolved by the alcohol. I had not realised it but it appears that up to 5% ethanol is added to a lot of the petrol commonly sold in this country and that providing it is less than 5% there is no legal requirement for the oil companies to declare it. A little research on the web brought me to the American 'Renewable Fuels Association' website. Apparently in the early 80's when they first introduced alcohol to their fuels, (I suspect in quantities above 5%), they did have problems with blockages due to build up of sticky residues in fuel systems. They report, however, that additives now added to petrol keep the systems clear and that there are no longer problems. I presume, but cannot be certain, that such additives are added to our petrol. If any members do experience any problems please do let us know.
